Glimpses of L.L.U.: blended facets of separate lives . . . coming together.

The pleasant shock of hot days in January or the unity of an earthquake and an eclipse.

The clutter of power lines
in an ageless scene of mountains
and empty spaces—
man's desperate urge to make a mark
on all that ever touches
his life

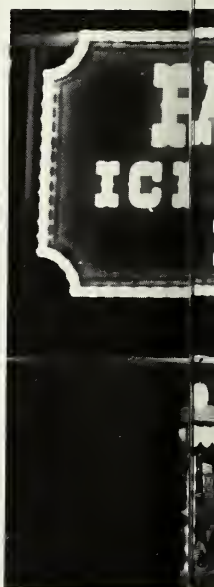

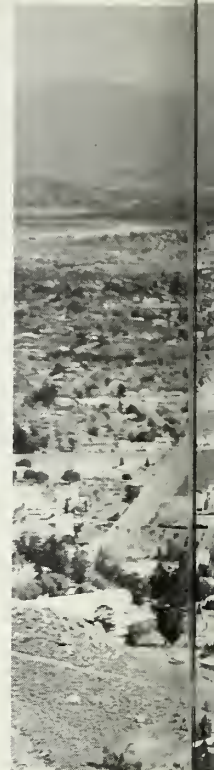

Man is a student,
He sees,
The seed bursts,
swollen with life.

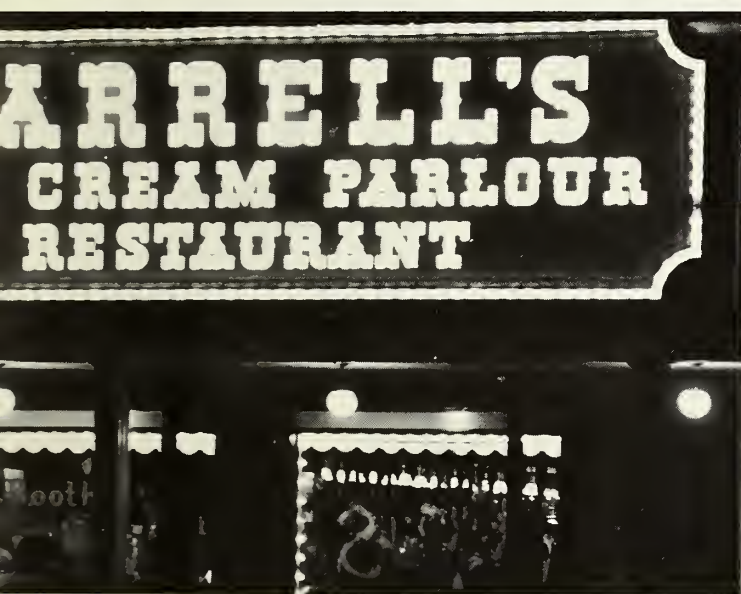

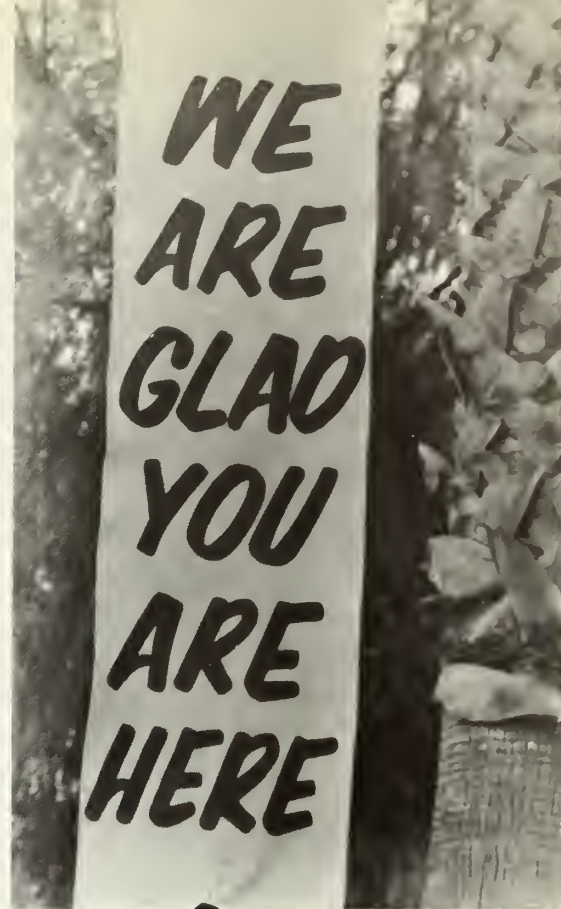

Strong shoot and
searching rootlet
He wonders
Wood or Weed?

Where is the value
of his education?

In his search
He discovers
Part of this seed.
And he grows . . .

If you can be nothing else, be honest;
and while you are honest, be loving,
and let that love grow
until it crowds out
all that is mean and tarnished
in your soul.

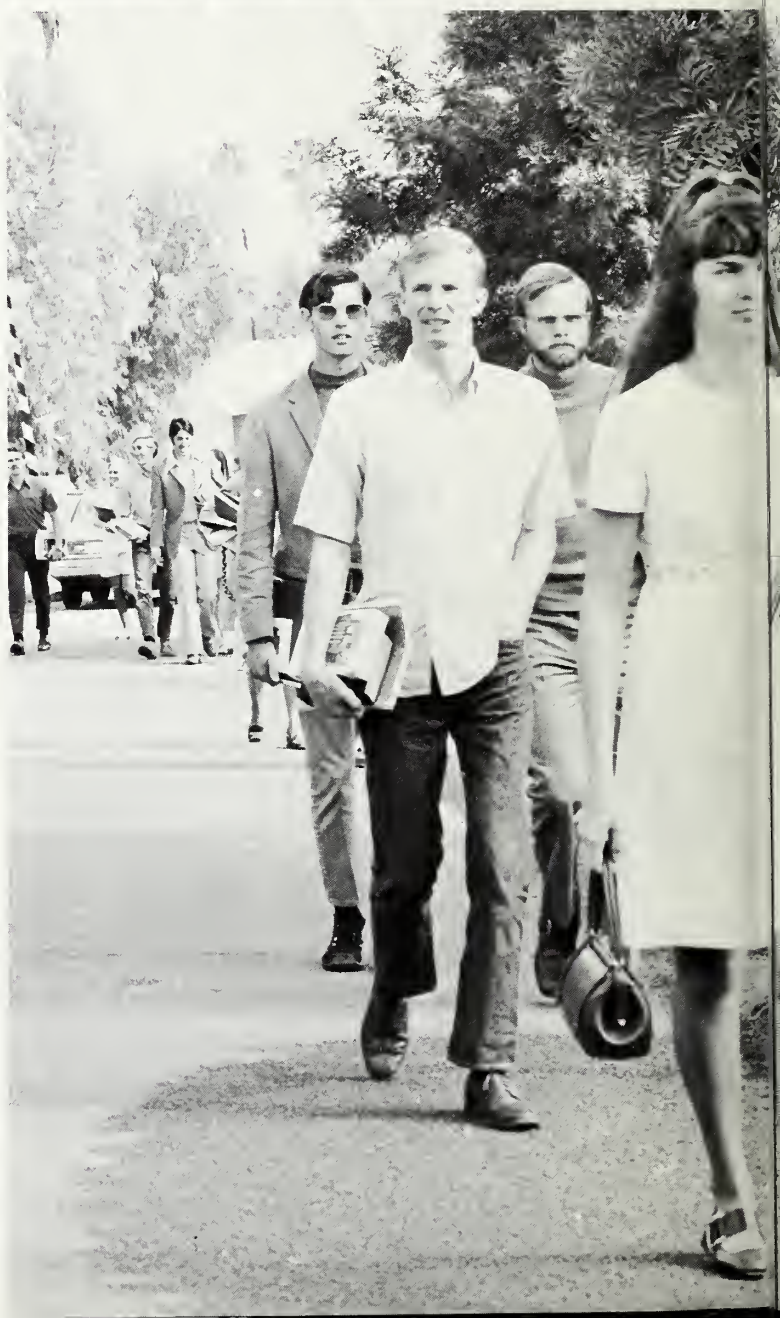

The sky is afire
A day is dying

Surrounded by the garbage of a crumbling
civilization
The children build Castles in the sand.

Sitting back they watch
The waves wash their dreams into oblivion
In the beauty of tomorrow
The children will return.

And here man finds the value of his education—in tomorrow.

And in preparing for Tomorrow, Man learns
He needs something
Greater than himself.
He finds help in knowing that someone.
So a few come
apart to pray
at noon
or in the mountains
alone
to find out . . .

DO NOT LET ANYONE LOOK
YOUNG, BUT BE AN EXAMPL SPEECH, YOUR CONDUCT, YOU

OWN ON YOU BECAUSE YOU ARE
FOR THE BELIEVERS. IN YOUR LOVE, FAITH AND SINCERITY

... what man should do.

"In Christ there is no east or west," they sang. But cast disparaging glances at the girl and her dark companion.

"The youth will finish the work," they said. But behind closed doors: "How nauseating this long hair!"

"We are saved by grace," they said, and added another tick in the small black book.

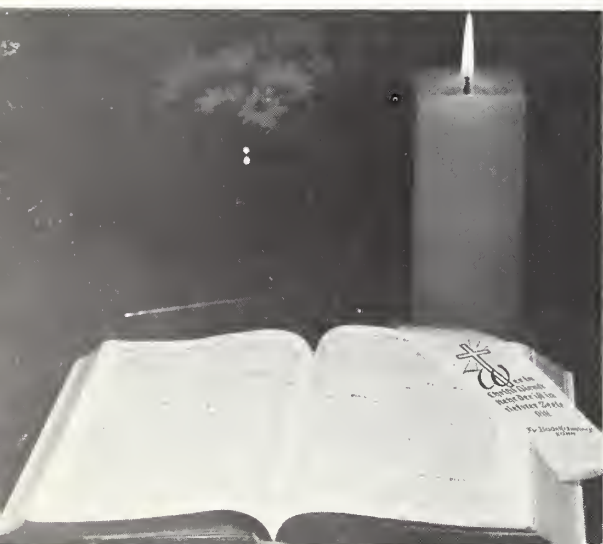

"Love God and do what thou wilt," they said. And did the latter.

"Get high with God," they said. But came down at the sight of the little old lady clutching her hymnal.

But in the night,
two or three wrestled
with convictions and found confort in each other.

With the dawn, one poured out her thanksgiving in song. One shared a meal with some one who was lonely. Others paused and made the noonday holy with their prayers. One spoke the truth though it were easier to keep silent. One went without his supper to listen to a friend.

At even, on the far side of the hill:
the sun's last lingering rays
touched the carefully-wrapped
New Testament
hidden in the crevice.

Left and Above: Elder Edwin Zackrison, Week of Prayer speaker in the fall.

Week of Prayer

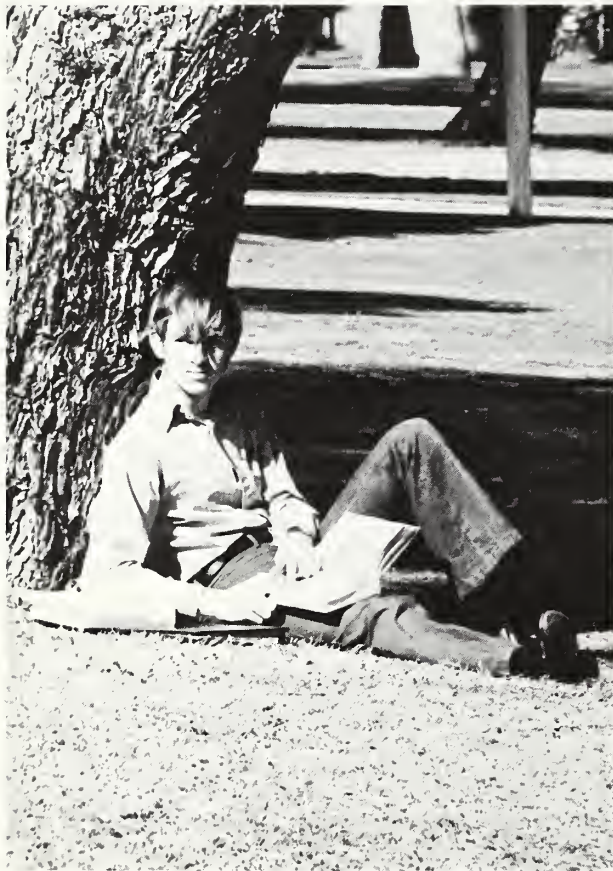

“As he taught he said: ‘Listen! A sower went out to sow. And it happened that as he sowed, some seed fell along the footpath; . . . Some seed fell on rocky ground . . . and some . . . among thistles. Some of the seed fell into good soil, where it came up and grew and bore fruit.’

“When he was alone, the Twelve and others who were round him questioned him about the parables. He replied, ‘To you the secret of the kingdom of God has been given.’”

Mark 4:2-11, New English Text.

As we learn what man should do we venture forth . . .

going as student missionaries
singing songs of praise
sharing our faith
meditating

There can be an assortment of views on the faith we live by,
yet we are continually driven to meet together in the shadow of the cross.
To understand the variety and the pragmatic organization
in order to survive,
creates greater bonds of unity
than the peaceful acceptance of pre-existing harmonies.

Breakdown

A together mind integral in one peace
floats too lightly on ethereal plane
unaware of the jagged rocks barely missed.

Then thought is scraped—pieces
split and jangle, dangle substracted from the whole.

Fragments form their separate worlds fashioned from rocks of their slicing—
the rock of strict duty, rock of pure vice,
rock of spiritual idealism.

Then fragments bang against the others—bashing and clanging to gain the greatest chunk of the integral process.

When merciless internal struggle of endless agitation reaches moment of supreme tension catastrophic flash engages final disunion—and a gigantic meteor sent from the far end of the universe smashes pieces of new peace.

Black History Week; Alex Haley

Top Left: Gladys Fletcher with Bulletin board during black history week. Bottom Left: Progressive senior class president Rocky Twyman right behind Alex Haley, co-author of the best selling book "The Autobiography of Malcolm X" and author of the forthcoming book "Before this Anger."

"Black people in America are like orphans. We are haunted by the question "Who are we? Where do we come from?" We all, everyone of us, have the same background. We all come from Africa."

But for decades, more has been known about the animals of Africa than her people... We have been robbed of our individual identity (and that is)... hideous.

If you want to know about the (sufferings and joys) of a people, study in detail the life of a person... Once we know where we came from, we can know who we are, and what has happened to us. And from there we can know how to achieve individual identity, then pride and equality."

"If you know the history of black people, you can understand their anger. One hundred million people were lost to the African continent during all the time of slavery. But this is not as hideous as being deprived of the knowledge of who we are.

Let me tell you. You know that (in a tribal clan) when a baby is born, (there is a ritual) where the father takes the baby in his hands, and lifts the baby to his lips and whispers into the baby's ear, for the first time it is spoken, the name decided for the baby, so the baby would be the first person to know who he is... Black truly is beautiful."

In the contemporary world dissonance has become our substitute for harmony. Perhaps we might be uneasy in order; we exist and thrive in a crashing junkpile of impressions to tantalize us, push us, and entertain us.

A school becomes one unit by a mysterious collection of people which come in all brands like the perfect happen-chance of the baubles a restless sea
washes up on the shore;

or by the delightful process
of learning, where ideally each person keeps pursuing his mind out to its edges
... and a little further;

this random jumble of ideas begins to come together eventually like the pebbles thrown into the pond.
The cause water ripples to intersect in a tangle of ever more complex and widening rings.

"To the extent that our schools are instruments of such a democratic society, teachers must develop in the young not only an awareness of this freedom of speech and thought etc. but a will to exercise it, and the intellectual power and perspective to do so effectively." Weingartner and Postman

100 mph cruiser. Is that your speed?

BMW's are built for Germany's no-speed-limit autobahns. The four will cruise all day at 100 mph. The six will do the same at 120 mph. If that kind of durability is your speed, see us for the free booklet, "33 Reasons Why BMW is Better." Or ask for the key. You'll get the message.
